Career Guidance and Vocational Testing services are available at the I Dont Do Addictive Drugs They are specifically designed for the following individuals:

- High school students considering college majors or career opportunities
- College students preparing to enter the work force
- People in career transition, and the recently unemployed.

We also offer specialized career guidance and programs for those with learning disabilities.

Focused interviewing and standardized testing with a vocational psychologist will allow our clients to have a greater awareness of their aptitudes, vocational interests and preferences, and interpersonal dynamics, as they may impact upon job performance and career satisfaction.

Individuals completing a career guidance program will become more informed and directed in their choice of a career. Our clients will be provided with these tools to help them achieve their objectives.

- A career "action plan"
- Awareness of effective job search and "networking" techniques
- Preparation for job interviews
- Printed self-help materials, internet links, and references for information on career and job search
- Recommendations for appropriate training, educational and self-help options to facilitate career growth
- Resume and cover letters as effective marketing tools
- Ongoing counseling and coaching
